This assignment is very important. This assignment will give you an understanding of how you can help with your class work, reading, spelling, writing, listening and understanding. The signed language is a way to say what we cannot express with our hands. The child’s speech and speech impairments cause problems in communication, which can limit the ability of deaf children to become successful in school. Deaf children and deaf youth often have difficulty accessing information from books and written material. They cannot read with ease and they may have difficulty understanding information in the form of print. In addition, they may not understand what they read, or understand the information that is read to them. Deaf children's capacity to hear is also a challenge for them to learn language. They may not hear what is said to them in class. They may miss class, and miss the opportunity to develop their communication skills. In addition to these challenges, deaf students also face challenges because they have a speech-language impairment. Deaf children are often known as Deaf or hard-of-hearing (HOH) people. They are described as deaf people. Deaf people are deaf. Deaf people do not hear. Therefore, a person who is deaf is usually described as hard of hearing. In addition, deaf people are described as having limited speech skills. They may have poor speech in English or American Sign Language (ASL). This limited speech often interferes with their academic success. Deaf people have other issues as well. They may have an impairment of lip-reading. They may have an impairment of speech. They may have
